Name: Amy Sondova

One sentence that describes me and my writing: I am an old soul and a deep thinker, which informs my sometimes amusing and other times thoughtful writing.

Brief bio: Amy Sondova is a lifelong animal lover, who has been owned by dogs, turtles, guinea pigs, birds, snakes, lizards, hamsters, guinea pigs, a rabbit, countless fish, and even a hedgehog. She is also a writer with experience in media writing, including interviews, reviews, and press materials. In her over 20 years of blogging, Amy has written columns, reviews, and articles on topics such as mental illness, Christianity and faith, grief, and nature. She currently resides in Allentown, Pennsylvania with her two dogs, Jovie and Kobie, and her cockatiel, Arrow. She's also an avid crocheter.

Why I write:

I write:

Fiction: ___short stories ___X_books

Genres: Women's fiction

Nonfiction: ___X_articles ___X_personal experience stories ___devotions ___X_books

Genres: narrative non-fiction (book,) articles: interviews, features, columns, mental health topics

Other: ___poetry ___scripts

My audience ___X_Christians ___X_general public ___X_women ___men ___X_teens ___children

I'm currently working on: a novel about a woman dealing with grief after the death of her mother, but it's also funny (women's fiction) that will be completed by the end of 2024, a narrative non-fiction about the animals who owned me (book proposal ready to go,) biweekly Substacks, salty Tweets on X, freelance articles, and even author bios as side hustle.

My greatest joy and/or struggle in writing is: My greatest joy in writing is sharing my words with others. My greatest struggle in writing is wondering if the words I'm sharing with others are coherent.

I'd like to meet writers who: freelance for magazines, write clean fiction, writer narrative non-fiction, live with mental health conditions
