Name: Krysten Lindsay Hager

I write young adult and contemporary romance novels with hope, heart, humor, and happily ever afters.

Brief bio: Krysten is an author, blogger, and podcast guest host for Michigan Avenue Media. She writes about friendship, dating, self-esteem, fitting in, fame, and values. Her work includes YA contemporary books, new adult, and middle grade fiction.

Why I write: My books have always been about helping readers feel less alone in what they're dealing with & giving hope, comfort, & a happily ever after.

The world always makes us feel like we have to conform to fit in and who we are isn't enough and my goal is to make my readers feel that what makes you different is what makes you special. I wasted too many years of my life trying to be who the world told me I should be and I want to stop others from having to go through that.

I write:

Fiction:  short stories  books

Genres: young adult, new adult, middle grade, adult contemporary

Nonfiction:  articles  personal experience stories  devotions  books

Genres: Personal essays and columns, devotions in anthologies

Other:  poetry  scripts

My audience  Christians  general public  women  men  teens  children

I'm currently working on: The third book in my Stars in the City young adult contemporary book series.

My greatest joy and/or struggle in writing is: My greatest joy is making readers feel less alone and providing comfort.

I'd like to meet writers who:

I belong to a writers' group that is open to new members.
