

Helpful Resources for the Technically Challenged

As an honest to goodness techno-idiot (I define the word), I became “live” on the Internet through the patient coaching of a fellow writer and coach, Candee Fick. For one-on-one live or virtual coaching, check out what Candee Fick has to offer at www.CandeeFick.com.

Other helpful resources include:

Plug-ins provide added tools for a variety of things including the ability to share your content, keep your comments free of spam, configure advertising, and SEO analytics. In the Plug-in section of your dashboard, use the search function.

Check out Yoast SEO for the most comprehensive and easy way to add SEO to your posts.

Pinging:

Feed Shark

<http://feedshark.brainbliss.com> (Free ping service for podcasts, blogs, & RSS feeds.)

GooglePing

<http://googleping.com> (Ping without registration.)

PingFarm

www.pingfarm.com (Free ping services. Search engines notified when blog or site is updated.)

Pingler

<http://pingler.com> (Both free and paid ping services provided on a regular schedule for multiple sites.)

Ping-O-Matic!

<http://pingomatic.com> (Owned by WordPress. Blog to search engine ping service.)

WordPress Pinging

<http://htwp2.com/to-ping-or-not-to-ping> (WordPress article.)